(R) of First & Second class Magistrates.

1 Before selections are actually made, it seems desirable that the principles which should regulate them should be discussed in Council.

2 The Scheme of Judicial Separation is an administrative reform of the first importance; and the fact that it is still on its trial is all the more reason why only such persons should be selected as from their qualifications and past training and experience are likely to do full justice to their selection. If this be so, it follows that selections, at least in the earlier stages, should be made primarily from Officers who have already earned an excellent record as Judicial Officers, that is as Assistant Commissioner - Magis-trates, or Amildar-Magistrates, or as Munsiffs or Subordinate Judges.

3 Failing these, the field of selection may be extended to practising lawyers of marked intelligence and some years' active experience at least at the bar.

4 But there is really no excuse in my opinion for pitchforking into the Magisterial chair men occupying ministerial appointments, or men long out of touch with Judicial work, or men, who owing to their age, are not likely to have the chance of qualifying themselves for higher judicial appointments. Men employed in the Police Department, whether whether as Prosecuting Inspectors or otherwise, should also, as a rule, be excluded for the reason that their training is one-sided and not calculated to give them the detachment of mind required to make a good judicial officer.

5 The division of the new Special Magistrates into two classes for purposes of pay has been productive of much unhealthy hankering and heart-burning, and it has led to quite a number of supersessions already. There is no particular reason why an officer who is selected for a Magistrate's place should, by reason of that fact alone, have his emoluments materially increased; why, for instance, Mr. D.K. Rama Rao, who was only getting Rs. 350 as a Munsiff, should be started right off on Rs. 500 when appointed a First-Class Magistrate, thereby going over the Heads of several of his seniors in the Judicial Department.

6 First and Second class Magistrates' Courts are established according to the requirements of work in the particular localities concerned; but the pay of the presiding officer should be invariably fixed according to his standing in the service.

7 I would therefore suggest that the pay of Special Magistrates (whether of the First or Second

⊗ It could be a matter for future consideration whether all these Courts may not be of the first-class.

	Second class) may be regulated as follow:-
	i) if they are Assistant Commissioners, they should draw their grade pay and nothing more;
	2) if Munsiffs, likewise their grade pay, the maximum of which may however be raised to Rs. 450/-.
	3) persons selected from other appointments or from outside the service should be suitably placed in a grade raising from Rs. 150-200 to Rs. 450 by trienial increments of Rs.50.
	4) above Rs. 450 there may be a certain number of appointments on Rs. 500-50/2-600 (say, ten when the Scheme is fully introduced), ~~to which~~ which promotions should be ~~effected~~ regulated entirely by merit and vacancy.
	5 When the Scheme is fully introduced it should be an understanding that Munsiffs should qualify themselves as Magistrates for a certain number of years before they can expect promotion to higher judicial appointments. And, likewise only Assistant Commissioners who have done good work as Special Magistrates should be eligible for appointment as District Magistrates.

PRINCIPLES REGULATING THE APPOINTMENTS OF FIRST AND SECOND CLASS MAGISTRATES UNDER THE SCHEME FOR THE SEPARATION OF JUDICIAL AND EXECUTIVE FUNCTIONS.

The Scheme for the separation of Judicial and Executive Functions will be introduced into the Mysore and Kadur Districts with effect from 1st October 1919. But before selections of Magistrates for the new courts are actually made, it is desirable to lay down generally the principles which should regulate these appointments.

2. As the scheme is an administrative reform of the first importance, which is still on its trial, it is essential that selections of Magistrates should be made, at least in the earlier stages, primarily from officers who have already earned an excellent record as Judicial Officers, i.e., as Magistrates (Assistant Commissioners or Amildars) Munsiffs or Sub Judges. Failing these, selections may be extended to practising lawyers of marked intelligence and at least some years' active experience at the bar.

3. As the divisions of the new Special Magistrates into two classes has been productive of much unhealthy hankering and heart burning and has led to a number of supersessions, I suggested that the pay of the Special Magistrates (whether of the 1st or 2nd class) should invariably be fixed according to their standing in the service, on the following principles:-

(i) Assistant Commissioners when appointed as Special Magistrates should draw their grade pay and nothing more.

(2) Munsiffs too should draw their grade pay, but the maximum pay in their case may be raised to Rs.450 per mensem.

(3) Persons selected from other appointments or from outside the service should be placed in a grade rising from 150-200-50/3-450 rupees per mensem.

(4) There should be a certain number of appointments on Rs. 500-50/2-600 (say 10 when the scheme is fully introduced) promotion to which should be by merit and vacancy only.

4. The question was considered in Council, and the Members are of opinion that Assistant Commissioners and Judicia Officers selected for the Magistracy should draw their grade pay only, that Amildars should be put in the grade of Rs.200-400, and that men selected from the bar should have had at least three years' practice at the bar.

Dear Mr Balasundram Esqr.

I am directed by my Lord the Commissioner to inform you that His Excellency the President will be pleased to call a Council Meeting at 11 A.M. on Friday the 25th instant.

Yours faithfully
[illegible]

The scheme adumbrated by Mr.K.S.Chandrasekhara Iyer contemplates the abolition of the Special Magistrates' grade of the first class which is being at present separately recruited, but reserves a certain number of appointments - about ten - on a pay of Rs.500-50-600/2 to provide for promotion to Magistrates in the lower grade according to their service and standing. In other words he wants to create a separate cadre for Magistrates with ten appointments in the higher grade. It is also a part of the scheme that the Munsiffs and Assistant Commissioners should be drafted to the ~~ministerial~~ magisterial line on their grade pay only and should get nothing more. If Munsiffs and Assistant Commissioners are to get nothing more than their grade pay how are these ten appointments in the higher grade to be disposed of? If these appointments are to go to the Magistrates other than the Munsiffs and Assistant Commissioners, viz., men appointed from the Amildari service or directly recruited from the Bar, then these persons will be very fortunate indeed for they will have a larger number of higher appointments within their reach than the Assistant Commissioners and Munsiffs.

2. The number of appointments of Second Class Magistrates under the scheme of separation of Judicial and Executive Functions is 19. These persons will have ten appointments in the grade of 500-50-600/2 reserved for them, whilst the Assistant Commissioners (71 in number) have only 7 appointments of Senior Assistant Commissioners open to them and Munsiffs

(22 in number) have only 4 appointments of Subordinate Judges to look forward to for promotion. To equalise the opportunities for all the services it is necessary to distribute the higher appointments amongst the several departments from which the Special Magistracy is to be recruited. It may appear at first sight to be very convenient to recrui the Magistrates from amongst the Munsiffs, but the service will have to be open to the Assistant Commissioners also as they have to be trained in Magesterial work in view of their future appointment as District Magistrates. These 10 appointments may therefore be distributed as follows:-

Assistant Commissioners	3
Munsiffs	3
Reserved for Magistrates recruited from the Amildari and other services.	2
Reserved for direct recruitment from the Bar.	2

3.If the appointments of Assistant Commissioners and Munsiffs are to be interchangeable with the Magistrates, then there should be an increase of three appointments in the cadre of Senior Assistant Commissioners and of three appointments in the cadre of Subordinate Judges. It is necessary to reserve two appointments for the Members of the Bar for direct recruitment, for the Bar is an integral part of our Judicial system and the older members of the profession who have made a mark should have something to look forward to in the Government Service. It is not, I think, right policy to ignore them altogether and alienate them from the Government. In another file the Chief Secretary has proposed that Public Prosecutors should be eligible for appointment as Magistrates of the first or second class. I quite agree with him, as otherwise the appointment of Public Prosecutors will not be attractive. As the men recruited directly from the Bar will be quite competent for Sub Judges' places these two appointments may also be included in the Sub Judges' cadre and the number of Subordinate Judges may further be increased by two. The reservation of these appointments for the Members of the Bar will not act as a hardship to the Munsiffs, because these appointments do not now form part of their regular cadre. Thus the appointments of Magistrates, first grade, will be interchangeable with Senior Assistant Commissioners and Subordinate Judges and no difficulty of any kind will be felt in selecting experienced men for the posts of first class Magistrates.

4. As regards Magistrates of the second grade, some will have to be reserved for Junior Assistant Commissioners to give them training in Magisterial work, some for the Munsiffs and some for direct recruitment from the Bar and the Amildari and other services. There is no reason why officials of the Secretariat and other offices who have passed the B.L. examination should not be eligible for the Magistrates' appointments. The Amildars in course of time will be deprived of their Magisterial powers and they will be in no better position than clerks of other offices. When they are declared eligible for Magistrates' posts, there is absolutely no reason why other officials, say of the Legislative Department of the Secretariat or Prosecuting Inspectors of Police, should not also be considered eligible. The Prosecuting Inspectors are in a better position than Amildars and other officials, for they daily deal with Criminal Law and stand on the same footing as Lawyers. If they develop one-sidedness as Prosecuting officers so do the Lawyers who appearing always for the accused develop a tendency for acquittal.

5. Having regard to the interests of the different departments, I would assign to them the following number of appointments:-

Assistant Commissioners.	6
Munsiffs.	4
Amildars and other services.	4
The Bar.	5

6. The cadres of Assistant Commissioners and Munsiffs will have to be increased by the number of appointments reserved for them.

The general question of laying down definite rules for the recruitment of magistrates under the separation scheme has engaged the attention of Government for sometime past. Government are pleased to direct that appointments to the magistracy be made from among Assistant Commissioners, Sub-Judges, Munsiffs, Amildars, and other members of the Bar in the manner laid down in detail in this order. Government also direct that for purposes of gradation of pay the designation of the magistracy be changed to Magistrates 1st grade and 2nd grade. The terms Magistrates 1st class and Magistrates 2nd class will be used only with reference to the powers conferred on them under the Criminal Procedure Code. It is the intention of Government to invest Magistrates of the 2nd grade also with First class powers whereever such a course is desirable in public interests.

2. The 11 places of first grade magistrates will be recruited from the said services in the proportion noted below :-

Senior Assistant Commissioners	4.
Subordinate Judges ...	3
Bar	2
By promotion of Magistrates recruited from the Amildari and other services ...	2

The number of second grade magistrates will be distributed as follows :-

Assistant Commissioners	6
Munsiffs ...	4
Amildari and other services ...	4
Bar ...	5

Until the scheme is fully introduced the recruitment from the several services will be at the discretion of Government.

3. The pay of the magistracy will be fixed as follows :-

(i) In the case of Assistant Commissioners selected for the magistracy they will draw their grade pay as Asst. Commissioners. Ordinarily Senior Asst. Commissioners will be posted as first grade magistrates and Assistant Commissioners of junior rank as second grade magistrates.

(ii) In the case of judicial officers selected from among Sub Judges or Munsiffs, they will also draw their grade pay.

(iii) Amildars and officers - selected from other services and the Bar will be put in the grade Rs.150-200-50/3-400 as 2nd grade magistrates.

(iv) The pay of the first ~~class~~ grade magistrates who are not Assistant Commissioners or Sub Judges, will be Rs.500-50/2-600.

4. Assistant Commissioners, Sub Judges and Munsiffs will be liable to be posted as magistrates, first and second grade, as the case may be, and members of the Bar directly recruited as 2nd and 1st grade magistrates will be eligible to be transferred for civil judicial work as Munsiffs and Sub Judges respectively. In order to provide the requisite number of officers for employment as magistrates, the cadres of Assistant Commissioners, Sub Judges and Munsiffs will be increased by the number of appointments allotted to them in the magistracy under paragraph 1 above viz.,

Senior Assistant Commissioners	4
Assistant Commissioners	6
Sub Judges	3
Munsiffs	4

Magistrates recruited from the Amildari and other services will not be eligible for transfer to the civil judicial service as Munsiffs or Sub Judges or to the general line as Assistant Commissioners, etc.

5. In making appointments to the magistracy from the Bar, the claims of Public Prosecutors who have rendered efficient service will receive special consideration. In other cases selection will be confined to lawyers who have had at least 3 years' practice at the Bar.

6. The other services in addition to the Amildari from which selection will be made to the magistracy will be defined by Government from time to time. For the present police inspectors and officials of the Secretariat and other offices, who have taken a degree in law will be eligible for selection.

Orders were passed in Government Order No. G.27798-805/Cts.157-18-2 dated the 12th June 1919 extending the scheme for the separation of judicial and executive functions to the districts of Mysore and Kadur, with effect from 1st October 1919.

2. Representations have since been received that Narasimharajapura will be a more central place than Tarikere and that Chamarajanagar will be a more convenient place than Nanjangud for the location of the Second Class Magistrates' Courts. Further, the question of permitting the Amildar of Yelandur and the Deputy Amildar of Sringeri to continue to exercise magisterial functions has been raised by the Jehagirdars and the opinions of the respective District Magistrates have also been received.

3. To give time for the settlement of these questions, it is considered desirable to introduce the scheme into the two districts from 1st January 1920 instead of from 1st October next. The Members of Council are agreeable to this proposal, and I solicit the gracious sanction of His Highness to the same.
